

To Whom It May Concern: Since I started subscribing to XM radio last year, I've been impressed with the variety and quality of programming that they are able to provide. For a low monthly fee, they give me near-cd-quality audio, a large selection of music (including 3 classical stations and 5 jazz/blues stations), and now instant access to current weather and traffic information in my area. This is the content that consumers are demanding and are paying for, and they should be allowed to receive it. Please reject the NAB's petition 04-160 and support the consumer's right to choose what content is delivered to them.

Sincerely,
Eric Carlson
